Provo, June 27.—The five masked robbers who operated on the Oregon Short Line raflway, between Salt Lake and Ogden, recently, seem to have transferred their activities to the Denver & Rio Grande, in this county.

Last night William Nelson and Sam Warner of this city got on a freight car at Soldier Summit to ride to Colton, where they intended to take the stage for Unitah county, where they were going to do some work on some mining claims. As they entered the car they were set upon by five masked men, who demanded their money. Nelson showed fight and was struck over the head with a pistol and otherwise bruised and wounded, and finally kicked off the train. He was unconscious for some time, and when he regained consciousness he walked about a mile to the Wax mine, where he was cared for and sent to Provo this mount.

Dr. H. B. Assadoorian has decided to locate in Provo.

Theodore Bergmeyer was sentenced to ten days for vagrancy by Justice John Friday. Three boys were also up on a charge of loafing around the de-pot. Two of them were let go on sus-nended sentence, after promising to pended sentence, after promising to quit frequenting the depots for pleasure. The other boy was discharged, being over 18 years of age, above which age the ordinance does not apply. He then became "sassy" over being arrested and was fined $2 for that.

A visitor at the office of Attorney General Knox yesterday ventured the opinion that there are many ideas of justice in the world. "Very true," said the attorney general. "and let me cite you a case in point. In a western city a political 'boss' collected one night a large campaign fund. Incidentally there was much cheer. Midnight found the 'boss' clinging to a lamppost trying to signal a cab. At that juncture two of the 'ward heelers' approached. For obvious reasons they had not been bidden to the feast, and they never suspected that their manager had $5,000 in his pockets. (New York Tribune.)

Boys, he said, 'I'm broke. Get a cab and take me to my hotel and I'll make good.' When they escorted him to the clerk's desk in the hotel, the leader managed to say: 'Give each of these men $5.' Then, handing over to the clerk his bulky roll, he added, as he sank into a chair, 'Take care of this wad until morning.' The two 'healers' gazed eagerly at the disappearing fortune, and, as the safe door shut one of them, doubling his fist at the leader, exclaimed: 'You miserable thief, you've robbed us!'

A brilliant event of the week in the social world was the marriage of Edith, the beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Middleton, on Wednesday evening to Fred Hill, son of Henry Hill. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Green and white were used in the dining room and formed a background for hundreds of brilliant roses. Across one corner of the parlor was an arch of ferns and foliage, beautifully filled in with dozens of American Beautyroses, under which the marriage ceremony was performed by President Charles F. Middleton, grandfather of the bride. The bride wore a beautiful dress of cream silk and lace, and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Minnle Middleton, an aunt of the bride, wore lavender trimmed in white silk and lace, and carried La France roses. George Reeves, a cousin of the groom, was best man. One room was filled with the elegant presents received by the young couple. The lawn was tastefully and brilliantly lighted up with Chinese lanterns and colored lights, and seats were provided for the hundreds of guests. About 206 relatives and friends of the popular young couple offered their congratulations, after which refreshments were served in the most elaborate style. The municipal court of Ogden, presided over by Justice Howell, established a precedent yesterday by becoming a bicycle court and was literally heid awheel. It was a case where the evidence could not come to the justice, so the justice went to the evidence. Fred M. Tout, who has been recently appointed special officer to represent the state humane society, informed the judge that there were numerous cases of cruelty to animals within the environs of the court's jurisdiction, but the evidence was such as could not easily be presented and labeled as exhibits. The upshot of it all was that the court put on his bicycle costume—consisting of a pair of steel clamps—over his regular judiciar robes and went out on a tour of inspection. Round about the city the officials sped, the court dismounting occasionally to hold a "sitting" and conduct a judicial investigation. At the Lotos club Charles W. Price told this story about J. "In the pioneer days of Alaska." said Captain J. S. Criter, an Alaskan pioneer, "San Francisco was the first place the natives ever heard of at associated with untold wonders. The person who had been to Frisco and back became the greatest man alive in the Siwash estimation. It was the ambition of every Indian, particularly the young men, to go to 'Frisco." One time two missionaries got into a quarrel at Nualato, and one killed the other. At that time people had to be taken to San Francisco for trial, and the missionary was arrested promptly and sent down there. Among the witnesses who were taken along was a young Siwash Indian.

"When he came back he was, of course, the lion of all the Indians in that district, and he made their unsophisticated eyes bulge, and aroused envy in every native breast by the tales he told of what he had seen at 'Frisco. Mr. Hayes was the greatest handshaker of all the presidents. He always took the initiative. He had the art of making the particular man with whom he was shaking hands feel that he was the one individual the president had come to visit. In 1879 he visited Kansas and was received everywhere with great acclaim. At Hutchinson a large crowd had gathered to greet him. In Hutchinson at the time was one Bill Graham, a cattleman much given to the use of intoxicating liquor. Bill joined the crowd without knowing what it was all about. He fell in line and gradually approached the president, who was standing on the lower step of his car and shaking hands with all who came. As Bill came near the president reached over, grasped him by the hand, shook it vigorously, and said: "My friend, I am delighted to see you."
